FOREWORD

The City of Aberdeen, holding in high reverence and undying gratitude those who went forth from her to the Great War, 1914–1919, and gave their lives for God, King and Country in the cause of Freedom and Justice the world over, has erected to their glorious Memory this Monument and Shrine, and, that it may be deposited therein, has with pious care and affection compiled and imprinted the following sacred Roll of their Names.

The Roll contains Five Thousand and Forty Names. Included in it are not only sons of the City by birth, but those also who were equally hers by education or adoption—all who went straight to their Service and Sacrifice from her Public Offices, her University, Colleges and Schools, her Professions and Trades ; with those others, too, who, born in Aberdeen but scattered throughout the world, heard overseas the call of duty as clearly as did their brothers at home, and as swiftly responded to it. They came from every class and rank of the people, from every church and form of religion, and from various levels of learning and mental equipment. But they were all comrades in obedience and discipline, in a firm sense of the Right for which they were called to fight, in a common valour, and in an equal faithfulness unto death.

What do we not owe to them and to the hundreds of thousands of our countrymen whom they joined in the greatest volume of sacrifice ever poured forth by any single generation down the whole range of our history ?

In the early days of the War, when, as a people, we felt our unworthiness of the awful trust committed to us, and our want of preparation to fight for it, the clear conscience and deliberate will with which they offered themselves gave the Nation new confidence and lifted all our hearts. Their sacrifices which followed sealed our faith in the justice of our Cause, and bound our City together as it never had been bound in a common sympathy and a common conscience. In the end our land was saved from the havoc of invasion, and humanity from one of the greatest moral disasters which ever threatened it. That the arrogant claims of our enemies were defeated—which had they succeeded would have darkened the heavens and depressed the spirit of man for generations—was due, under God, to the valour and devotion of these men and boys and of their countless comrades in the Allied Armies.

The City has raised this Monument to their Memory, not only with the pious care that their Names should endure as of brave men who fought for their Country in the greatest crisis of her history ; but in the hope and with the prayer that as future generations in Aberdeen behold the Monument and read the Names enshrined in the Roll, they may draw from them some of the spirit of these heroic forerunners and be stirred to follow, whether in peace or in peril, the example of their discipline, their courage, their faith, and their self-sacrifice.

GEORGE ADAM SMITH.

Here beginneth the Roll of the Men and Women of Aberdeen who laid down their Lives in the Great War of 1914-1919: being the Record of their Names, of their Ranks in the Navy, the Army, the Air Force, and the Mercantile Marine; of their Homes, and of the Dates of their Sacrifices to the sacred Cause of Freedom, Truth and Justice.

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."
